Eun Jeong Seong Wins the 2015 Championship

Eun Jeong Seong, of the Republic of Korea, led for all but two holes in a decisive 3-and-2 victory over Angel Yin, of Arcadia, Calif., in the 2015 U.S. Girls' Junior Championship's final match at Tulsa Country Club.

In what would be her only lead of the day, Yin, 16, sank her 10-foot birdie putt on the par-4 first hole after the two long-hitters each cut the corner of the dogleg-right opening hole. This was the first time Seong, 15, had lost the first hole since Wednesday's Round of 64.

She rebounded quickly, however, squaring the match on the next hole with a 13-foot putt for birdie. By the fourth hole, she was 2 up, and Yin would get no closer than that for the remainder of the match.

"I'm happy, I'm very happy," said a joyful Seong about the win. "I thank my mom, who is in Korea. She cannot sleep because she's watching the cellphone, and she said every day, cheer up, cheer up and enjoy playing, and she told me I can do it."

Seong, the 2014 U.S. Women's Amateur Public Links runner-up, also credited her experience from that championship with helping her keep calm during today's final match, a demeanor she needed against a determined Yin.

After finding herself in a tough spot in the back bunker on the 14th hole and facing a 5-down deficit, Yin settled down on No. 15, where she sank a right-to-left 10-footer for birdie. Yin's par-saving putts on Nos. 16 through 18 held Seong to a 4-up lead heading into the midday break.

"The first 18 was tough," said Yin, who burned the edges on six putts and failed to take advantage of some good birdie opportunities. "I don't think I played that well, and I kind of just – estimating my score, I was like 3-over. I can say that was like the worst round I played all week."

"This morning, Angel made so many mistakes on the front nine," added Seong. "That's why I had confidence. But she play(ed) in the afternoon so very well."

Yin returned from the break with a birdie on the 19th hole, mimicking her morning's success on the par-4 first hole. Seong, however, answered with a birdie of her own on No. 21, regaining her 4-up lead.

From Nos. 22 through 30, Yin applied pressure to her opponent. She converted a 12-footer for birdie at the par-3 24th hole. Seong then made her biggest mistake of the championship match at the par-4 28th, hitting her tee shot far to the right and into a water hazard and providing Yin a prime opportunity to attack. Yin's 3-foot comebacker for par cut the deficit to 2 down.

Sticking to her long-hitting game plan, Seong drove the green on the 245-yard 31st hole, setting up a two-putt birdie that effectively shuttered Yin's comeback. She ultimately captured the victory with a two-putt par at the 34th hole, after Yin's 8-footer to extend the match lipped out.

Not only did the match showcase two talented young golfers, it was also a lesson in sportsmanship and camaraderie as the two girls who live an ocean apart walked together on several holes, sharing an umbrella and a laugh.

The umbrella played a crucial role in keeping both players reasonably cool on a hot Tulsa day where temperatures reached the high 90s and heat indices soared into the triple digits.

"I know I have the game because I've been fixing it, and then I came here, and then the heat took me," said Yin of the stifling Tulsa sunshine. "I'm physically not up with this, especially with the weather."

Championship History

The U.S. Girls' Junior Championship was established in 1949, one year after the U.S. Junior Amateur Championship. Philadelphia (Pa.) Country Club, one of the oldest golf courses in the nation, was the host club for the USGA's newest championship. The club's Bala Course was constructed in 1891, three years before the birth of the USGA.

The inaugural Girls' Junior drew a starting field of 28 girls from 17 states, although 10 of the players were from the Philadelphia area.

More impressive than the size of the field or the styles of play was the wonderful spirit and sportsmanship the contestants brought to the game, and their complete lack of pretense.

The first champion, 15-year-old Marlene Bauer, came all the way from Los Angeles to win her first national golf title. While golf for girls beyond the club level was still a novelty, Bauer had been encouraged by her father, a golf professional, since the age of 3. Her victory in the first Girls' Junior was the springboard for a long and distinguished career.

The championship has also helped launch the careers of such outstanding players as Mickey Wright, who won in 1952 and later captured four U.S. Women's Open Championships, and JoAnne Gunderson Carner, who won the first of her eight USGA titles in the 1956 Girls' Junior. Nancy Lopez won in 1972 and 1974, interrupted in 1973 by Amy Alcott, who went on to win the Women's Open in 1980.

Considering the brevity and time limitations on a junior golf career, Hollis Stacy's record of three consecutive Girls' Junior Championships, from 1969 to 1971, is among the most remarkable accomplishments in USGA history. Stacy, however, never made it easy. The final matches of her first two championships went 18 holes. In her last victory, in 1971, Stacy needed 4-under-par golf to eventually defeat Alcott at the 19th hole. From the third through the 17th holes, neither player made a bogey; between them they made nine birdies. The match is regarded as one of the finest in USGA history.

With her last victory, Stacy became only the seventh golfer to win USGA championships in three successive years. She later won the Women's Open Championship in 1977, 1978 and 1984.

Kay Cornelius, the 1981 winner, is among the noteworthy champions. Her mother, Kathy Cornelius, won the 1956 U.S. Women's Open. They remain the only mother-daughter tandem to have captured USGA championships.

While victory in the U.S. Girls' Junior by no means guarantees a successful career in women's golf, Girls' Junior champions have won the Women's Amateur 11 times and the Women's Open 12 times. Furthermore, 19 Girls' Junior champions have gone on to represent the USA on the Curtis Cup Team through 2015, including such names as Heather Farr, Gunderson Carner, Lopez, Stacy and Lexi Thompson.
