Jordan Spieth Wins the 2015 Championship

Jordan Spieth, the 21-year-old from Dallas, Texas, who finished in the penultimate group at 5-under 275, watched as Dustin Johnson missed a 12-foot eagle putt to win the championship followed by a failed 4-foot attempt for birdie, which would have forced an 18-hole Monday playoff between himself and Spieth.

Instead of playing extra golf, Spieth joined Craig Wood, Ben Hogan (twice), Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus and Tiger Woods as the only players to win the Masters and U.S. Open in the same year. He also became the youngest to win two majors since Gene Sarazen in 1922, is the youngest U.S. Open champion since Jones won the first of four in 1923 at 21 years, 3 months, and joins Woods and Johnny Miller as the only players to have won a U.S. Junior Amateur and U.S. Open.

World No. 2 Spieth, who entered the final round tied for the lead with Johnson, Jason Day and Branden Grace, carded a 1-under 69 for a 72-hole total of 5-under 275.

Johnson (70) and Louis Oosthuizen, who followed up a pair of 66s with a 67 that included a run of five consecutive birdies on the inward nine, shared second at 276. Adam Scott, who posted a championship-low 64 on Sunday, and fellow Australian Cameron Smith, 21, joined Grace in a tie for fourth at 277. Day, the sentimental favorite after playing the final 36 holes while dealing with vertigo, struggled to a 74 and tied for ninth at even-par 280.

Four-time major champion and world No. 1 Rory McIlroy carded a 66 to share ninth with Day and fellow Irishman Shane Lowry.

"I'm still amazed that I won, let alone that we aren't playing tomorrow," said Spieth, who joins Woods and Johnny Miller as the only players to have won a U.S. Junior Amateur and U.S. Open. "I feel for Dustin. But I haven't been able to put anything in perspective yet."

Johnson has had three previous disappointing finishes in majors, including the 2010 U.S. Open at Pebble Beach, where he held the 54-hole lead, but shot a final-round 82. Two months later in the PGA Championship at Whistling Straits, he incurred a two-stroke penalty on the 72nd hole by unknowingly grounding his club in a bunker, keeping him out of the playoff won by Martin Kaymer over Bubba Watson. He also was in contention in the 2011 British Open, only to hit his second shot out of bounds on the 14th hole and end up sharing second with Phil Mickelson, three shots behind champion Darren Clarke.

"I'm disappointed, but also I'm disappointed that I three-putted the last hole," said Johnson, a nine-time PGA Tour winner who turned 31 the next day. "Other than that, I had a damn good week. I'm happy with the way I played. I'm happy with everything in my game right now. I had a chance to win a major again on a Sunday. I thought I handled myself very well."

The USGA set up Chambers Bay to play 7,384 yards, the shortest of the four rounds, and kept No. 18 a par 5 while making 16 a drivable par 4 at 330 yards, creating the possibility for a dramatic finish.

The drama started on 16 when Spieth slithered home a 27-footer for birdie to take a two-stroke lead, while Grace made double bogey after hitting his tee shot out of bounds. Moments later, Spieth hit one of his worst shots of the championship, a blocked 6-iron into high fescue rough on the par-3 17th. It led to a double bogey when he three-putted from 40 feet. That dropped him into a tie with Oosthuizen, who had birdied the 18th hole to become the third player in U.S. Open history to shoot a 29 for nine holes. Oosthuizen, who opened with a 77 on Thursday, went from a tie for 135th after Thursday to a share of second by shooting the lowest final 54-hole total in championship history (199).

"The last time I felt that was in 2012 at Augusta," said Oosthuizen, the 2010 British Open champion. "It was nice being in that spot again. I felt very relaxed. I felt eager to get to the next hole and try and get some birdies going. I wasn't nervous at all. I'll take a lot out of this week, especially the last three days the way I played."

Spieth quickly recovered from his 17th-hole gaffe, knocking his second shot on 18 with a fairway metal to 17 feet. His eagle putt stopped 7 inches left of the hole, and he tapped in for birdie, eliminating Oosthuizen from contention.

Johnson, however, was playing behind Spieth. After three bogeys in a four-hole stretch to start the inward nine, Johnson stuffed his tee shot on the par-3 17th to 4 feet and converted the birdie. By the time he reached the 18th tee, the scenario was set: an eagle to win and a birdie to force an 18-hole Monday playoff.

The longest driver on the PGA Tour split the fairway with a 357-yard tee shot, and he followed with a 5-iron approach from 247 yards to 12 feet. With fiancé Paulina Gretzky and legendary hockey player Wayne Gretzky watching from behind the green, Johnson attempted to become the first U.S. Open competitor to win with a 72nd-hole eagle. The putt trickled 4 feet past, and Johnson watched the comebacker for birdie burn the left edge.

Spieth and his caddie, Michael Greller, a Gig Harbor, Wash., resident who was a caddie at Chambers Bay when the course opened eight years ago, celebrated near the scoring trailer. The pair first teamed up in 2011 in the U.S. Junior Amateur at nearby Gold Mountain in Bremerton, Wash.

Championship History

On Oct. 4, 1895, the first U.S. Open Championship was conducted by the United States Golf Association on the nine-hole course of Newport (R.I.) Golf and Country Club.

The first U.S. Open was considered something of a sideshow to the first U.S. Amateur, which was played on the same course and during the same week. Both championships had been scheduled for September but were postponed due to a conflict with a more established Newport sports spectacle, the America's Cup yacht races.

Ten professionals and one amateur started in the 36-hole competition, which was four trips around the Newport course in one day. The surprise winner was Horace Rawlins, 21, an English professional who was the assistant at the host course. Rawlins scored 91-82—173 with the gutta-percha ball.

Prize money totaled $335, of which Rawlins won the $150 first prize. He also received a gold medal and custody of the Open Championship Trophy for his club for one year.

In its first decade, the U.S. Open was conducted for amateurs and the largely British wave of immigrant golf professionals coming to the United States.

As American players began to dominate the game, the U.S. Open evolved into an important world golf championship. Young John J. McDermott became the first native-born American winner in 1911 and repeated as champion in 1912.

In 1913, the U.S. Open really took off when Francis Ouimet, a 20-year-old American amateur, stunned the golf world by defeating the famous English professionals Harry Vardon and Ted Ray in a playoff.

Another surge in the championship's popularity coincided with the amazing career of Georgia amateur Robert T. Jones Jr., who won the U.S. Open four times (1923, 1926, 1929, 1930). Spectator tickets were sold for the first time in 1922 and a boom in entries caused the USGA to introduce sectional qualifying in 1924.

In 1933, John Goodman became the fifth and last amateur to win the U.S. Open. The others were Ouimet, Jerome D. Travers (1915), Charles Evans Jr. (1916) and Jones.

In each era, the world's greatest players have been identified by surviving the rigorous examination provided by the U.S. Open. Ben Hogan's steely determination boosted him to four victories (1948, 1950, 1951, 1953). Arnold Palmer's record comeback win in 1960, when he fired a final-round 65 to come from seven strokes off the lead, cemented his dash-ing image. Jack Nicklaus' historic assault on the professional record book began when he won the first of his four U.S. Open Championships in 1962, his rookie season as a professional.

Nicklaus, who also won in 1967, 1972 and 1980, is one of only four golfers to capture four U.S. Open titles. The others are Willie Anderson (1901, 1903, 1904, 1905), Jones and Hogan.

In 1954, the U.S. Open course was roped from tee to green for the first time. That year also marked the first national television coverage. Coverage was expanded by ABC Sports in 1977 so that all 18 holes of the final two rounds were broadcast live. In 1982, the first two rounds were broadcast live for the first time on ESPN. NBC began televising the U.S. Open in 1995.

The format of the U.S. Open has changed several times. The USGA extended the championship to 72 holes in 1898, with 36 holes played on each of two days. In 1926, the format was changed to 18 holes played each of two days, then 36 holes on the third day. In 1965, the present format of four 18-hole daily rounds was implemented for the first time.

In 2002, a two-tee (No. 1 and No. 10) start was used for the first and second rounds. In addition, Bethpage State Park's Black Course in Farmingdale, N.Y., became the first facility owned by the public to host a U.S. Open. International qualifying sites were added in 2005 and the champion at Pinehurst (N.C.) Resort was Michael Campbell, who qualified in England.
