Brooks Koepka Wins the 2017 Championship

On the eve of the biggest final round of his young career, Brooks Koepka received a phone call from defending U.S. Open champion and close friend Dustin Johnson. Johnson, who missed the cut in the 117th U.S. Open at Erin Hills, offered the kind of encouragement a 27-year-old seeking his first major championship needed.

“He told me to just keep doing what I’m doing, you’re going to win the thing, and don’t get ahead of yourself,” said Koepka.

Then Koepka turned Johnson into a prophet.

Koepka, one of the biggest hitters in the game, continued to bring the longest U.S. Open venue to its knees. Starting Sunday one stroke behind 54-hole leader Brian Harman, the former Florida State All-American fired a 5-under-par 67 – his third sub-70 round of the championship – to produce a four-stroke victory over Harman and world No. 4 Hideki Matsuyama, of Japan.

Koepka’s 72-hole total of 16-under 272 was four strokes shy of the championship record registered by Rory McIlroy in 2011 at par-71 Congressional Country Club in Bethesda, Md., and it tied the Northern Irishman’s mark in relation to par. He also became the seventh consecutive first-time major champion and the third American in a row to win the U.S. Open, the first time that’s happened since 2000 when Tiger Woods followed Payne Stewart and Lee Janzen.

It was all part of a record-setting week at Erin Hills, the first course to host a U.S. Open in Wisconsin. Even though the wind blew the hardest it had all championship – 15 to 25 mph – 18 under-par scores were posted on Sunday, bringing the total to 140, which surpassed the 124 registered in 1990 at Medinah (Ill.) Country Club.

Koepka’s four-stroke victory is the largest in the last nine majors, dating to 2015 U.S. Open champion Jordan Spieth’s four-stroke win in the 2015 Masters.

Even more astonishing was the seven golfers who finished double digits under par, with Tommy Fleetwood (11-under 277) finishing fourth, and Bill Haas, 18-hole leader Rickie Fowler and U.S. Open rookie Xander Schauffele tying for fifth at 10-under 278. Those relation-to-par numbers would have won all but two U.S. Opens: Woods’ 15-stroke romp in 2000 at Pebble Beach (Calif.) Golf Links and McIlroy’s eight-stroke victory in 2011.

Unfortunately for them, Koepka, No. 22 in the Official World Golf Ranking, was just too good. His impeccable ball-striking led to 17 of 18 greens hit, and his three consecutive birdies from Nos. 14-16 were the coup de grace.

Through nine holes, it appeared the championship would come down to a Koepka-Harman duel, and when the former registered his first three-putt of the championship on No. 10 for a bogey 5, the two were deadlocked at 13 under. Things could have unraveled for Koepka two holes later, but he converted a 9-foot par putt. That set the stage for his birdie barrage, including a 17-footer on the par-3 16th to reach 16 under.

When Harman made a bogey 5 on the par-4 12th and a rare three-putt on No. 13, any drama was all but removed.

“I don’t believe in moral victories,” said Harman, the 2003 U.S. Junior Amateur champion who was vying to become the first left-handed golfer to hoist the U.S. Open Trophy. “I had an opportunity today and I didn’t get it done. But at the same time, I don’t feel as though I lost a golf tournament. I think Brooks went out and won the tournament.”

Matsuyama made a late run with five birdies over his final eight holes to get into the clubhouse at 12 under, but Koepka never wavered, producing a pair of pars on 17 and 18 to seal the win.

Koepka didn’t outwardly celebrate on the 18th green because he didn’t exactly know where Harman, in the final pairing behind him, stood. There was a small fist pump, then some congratulatory hugs with his caddie, agent and girlfriend before heading to the scoring area.

Koepka appeared cool all the way around Erin Hills on Sunday, hitting massive drives, with all but two finding the wide fairways. He led the championship in greens hit (62 of 72) and finished fourth in fairways hit (49 of 56), a solid formula for winning a USGA championship.

“He’d been knocking on the door for a while,” said good friend Justin Thomas, who tied for ninth after shooting 75 a day after his U.S. Open record-tying 63. “I felt he’s been very unnoticed and maybe not respected as much as he should have for his record. He’s played so well in the majors and played great in the [2016] Ryder Cup. It’s crazy to think that this is only his second [PGA Tour-sanctioned] win. When he’s on, there are not many people in the world better.”

Perhaps all he needed was the right venue. Erin Hills, with its generous fairways, definitely fit Koepka’s game.

“To win my first major in the United States is pretty special,” said Koepka. “It is Father’s Day, so hopefully... this [trophy] works.”

Championship History

On Oct. 4, 1895, the first U.S. Open Championship was conducted by the United States Golf Association on the nine-hole course of Newport (R.I.) Golf and Country Club.

The first U.S. Open was considered something of a sideshow to the first U.S. Amateur, which was played on the same course and during the same week. Both championships had been scheduled for September but were postponed due to a conflict with a more established Newport sports spectacle, the America's Cup yacht races.

Ten professionals and one amateur started in the 36-hole competition, which was four trips around the Newport course in one day. The surprise winner was Horace Rawlins, 21, an English professional who was the assistant at the host course. Rawlins scored 91-82—173 with the gutta-percha ball.

Prize money totaled $335, of which Rawlins won the $150 first prize. He also received a gold medal and custody of the Open Championship Trophy for his club for one year.

In its first decade, the U.S. Open was conducted for amateurs and the largely British wave of immigrant golf professionals coming to the United States.

As American players began to dominate the game, the U.S. Open evolved into an important world golf championship. Young John J. McDermott became the first native-born American winner in 1911 and repeated as champion in 1912.

In 1913, the U.S. Open really took off when Francis Ouimet, a 20-year-old American amateur, stunned the golf world by defeating the famous English professionals Harry Vardon and Ted Ray in a playoff.

Another surge in the championship's popularity coincided with the amazing career of Georgia amateur Robert T. Jones Jr., who won the U.S. Open four times (1923, 1926, 1929, 1930). Spectator tickets were sold for the first time in 1922 and a boom in entries caused the USGA to introduce sectional qualifying in 1924.

In 1933, John Goodman became the fifth and last amateur to win the U.S. Open. The others were Ouimet, Jerome D. Travers (1915), Charles Evans Jr. (1916) and Jones.

In each era, the world's greatest players have been identified by surviving the rigorous examination provided by the U.S. Open. Ben Hogan's steely determination boosted him to four victories (1948, 1950, 1951, 1953). Arnold Palmer's record comeback win in 1960, when he fired a final-round 65 to come from seven strokes off the lead, cemented his dashing image. Jack Nicklaus' historic assault on the professional record book began when he won the first of his four U.S. Open Championships in 1962, his rookie season as a professional.

Nicklaus, who also won in 1967, 1972 and 1980, is one of only four golfers to capture four U.S. Open titles. The others are Willie Anderson (1901, 1903, 1904, 1905), Jones and Hogan.

In 1954, the U.S. Open course was roped from tee to green for the first time. That year also marked the first national television coverage. Coverage was expanded by ABC Sports in 1977 so that all 18 holes of the final two rounds were broadcast live. In 1982, the first two rounds were broadcast live for the first time on ESPN. NBC began televising the U.S. Open in 1995 and was followed by Fox in 2015.

The format of the U.S. Open has changed several times. The USGA extended the championship to 72 holes in 1898, with 36 holes played on each of two days. In 1926, the format was changed to 18 holes played each of two days, then 36 holes on the third day. In 1965, the present format of four 18-hole daily rounds was implemented for the first time.

In 2002, a two-tee (No. 1 and No. 10) start was used for the first and second rounds. In addition, Bethpage State Park's Black Course in Farmingdale, N.Y., became the first facility owned by the public to host a U.S. Open. International qualifying sites were added in 2005 and the champion at Pinehurst Resort & Country Club, in Village of Pinehurst, N.C., was Michael Campbell, who qualified in England.
