

previously set by Johnny Miller (1973), Jack Nicklaus (1980) and Tom Weiskopf (1980) ... Singh's 29 on the back nine also tied the record for low nine-hole score, previously set by Neal Lancaster (1995 and 1996) ... Furyk (67-66-67-200) established a new 54-hole scoring record for the U.S. Open, breaking the record of 203 previously shared by George Burns (1981), T.C. Chen (1985), and Lee Janzen (1993) ... Furyk also tied the 72-hole scoring record of 272, a mark he shares with Nicklaus (1980), Janzen (1993) and Woods (2000) ... the cut at 3-over-par 143 was the lowest cut in U.S. Open history ... the USGA accepted 7,820 entries for the championship ... Olympia Fields hosted its third USGA championship, having previously hosted the 1928 U.S. Open and 1997 U.S. Senior Open ... for the first time, the U.S. Open was broadcast by a Russian television station (NTV).

Championship History

On Oct. 4, 1895, the first U.S. Open Championship was conducted by the United States Golf Association on the nine-hole course of Newport (R.I.) Golf and Country Club.

The first U.S. Open was considered something of a sideshow to the first U.S. Amateur, which was played on the same course and during the same week. Both championships had been scheduled for September but were postponed because of a conflict with a more established Newport sports spectacle, the America's Cup yacht races.

Ten professionals and one amateur started in the 36-hole competition, which was four trips around the Newport course in one day. The surprise winner was Horace Rawlins, 21, an English professional who was the assistant at the host course. Rawlins scored 91-82—173 with the gutta-percha ball.
