The Eisenhower Trophy was presented in 1958 for the World Amateur Team Championship of the International Golf Federation (then called the World Amateur Golf Council) by the American Friends of Golf through the United States Golf Association and The R&A. It is named in honor of United States President Dwight D. Eisenhower, an avid golfer, who received WAGC delegates at the White House in 1958. The inscription reads, "To foster friendship and sportsmanship among the Peoples of the World."

France Wins the 2010 Championship

Johann Lopez-Lazaro and Alexander Levy each shot even-par 72 to propel France to victory at the 2010 World Amateur Team Championship by four strokes over Denmark and five strokes over the USA to win the Eisenhower Trophy at Buenos Aires Golf Club in Buenos Aires, Argentina.

"It is unbelievable. It is fantastic," said Levy, 20, who won the French Amateur in 2009. "It is a great moment."

Romain Wattel, who shot a non-counting 74 and is the reigning Argentine Amateur champion, joined Levy as two of the three lowest individual scorers.

"It is fabulous for France and for our Federation and for all French golfers," Wattel said. "It has been a great week."

The French, with a 7-under-par 423, fended off the Danes and Americans in the last 12 holes of the weather-shortened 54-hole championship.

In that stretch, Lopez-Lazaro, the 2010 Portugal Amateur champion, overcame a poor start that included two bogeys and a double bogey in his first six holes by posting four birdies with no bogeys. His 25-foot birdie on the 18th hole gave him a final nine-hole score of 3-under 33. Levy holed a critical 50-putt birdie putt on the par-5 17th hole and was even par over those 12 holes.

"I looked at the leader board on 17 and saw France at five under and the Danish at four under," Levy said. "Then, I made that birdie. It was great."

Because of poor weather during the second round, the championship was reduced to 54 holes but the efficient French held the lead at the end of each round. With a compressed schedule, the top 17 teams started their third rounds on Sunday. In the third round, the leading teams played Buenos Aires Golf Club and the others played Olivos Golf Club. Winds gusted to approximately 20-30 mph most of the day.

France began the day with a one-stroke lead over Denmark and six ahead of the USA. Early in the round, the Danes had hope because of the play of Joachim Hansen, who was the low individual scorer at 6-under-par 209. With his birdie on the par-5 sixth, the Danes had a one-stroke lead.

"At 13, we thought we had a chance and we were quite sure the boys would do it," said Torben Nyehuus, Denmark's captain. "But it kind of slipped away. Look at the last six holes. We made a bogey and a double bogey. That's the way it is. We are small country with not a lot of good amateur golfers and this could be more than we could expect."

One hole after the Danes gained the lead, Lopez-Lazaro and Levy steadied their play and staved off a rally by the Americans. Led by 2010 U.S. Amateur champion Peter Uihlein, who shot the lowest individual round of the day (2-under-par 70), the USA closed to within two strokes.

"They were solid and didn't make a lot of mistakes, at least (Alexander) Levy didn't," Uihlein said. "That made it hard to catch them. Obviously, it's disappointing but my hat is off to France. They played solid. They didn't make a lot of mistakes and it was probably too big of a lead."

The French team added to its second-place finish in 2002 and its tie for third in 1992 for a third medal in Eisenhower Trophy competition. Team captain Maitena Delamontagne was a member of France's gold-medal winning team in the Women's World Amateur Team Championship in 2000.

"It is still a very special feeling," Delamontagne said. "I think I was more nervous on the first tee today than I was as a player. I was able to be active in the result as a player but as a captain I can only give advice but I cannot control anything else."

Denmark, at 427, claimed its first medal in the championship. The USA, at 428, now has 23 medals, with a top-10 finish in all 27 Eisenhower Trophy competitions.

Ireland and the USA had the low team score of the final day at 1-under-par 143.

In the top 10, the USA was followed by New Zealand, in fourth, at 435, defending champion Scotland in fifth at 436, Ireland at 439 in sixth and Germany at 440 in seventh. England, Belgium and Canada shared eighth place at 441.

Championship Notes

Two holes-in-one were made in the first round: Oliver Farr of Wales on the fourth hole and Tomas Cocha of Argentina on the 17th hole at Olivos G.C. ... Hak Shun Yat of Hong Kong, China, made a double eagle 2 at the par-5 second hole at Buenos Aires Golf Club in the first round.

General

Olivos Golf Club became the first course to ever host the World Amateur Team Championship twice, having previously served as host club in 1972. ... Because of the poor weather in the second round, the championship was reduced to 54 holes for only the second time ... The Eisenhower Trophy competition went 23 consecutive competitions of 72 holes before weather forced the championship to just 54 holes in 2004 (although a 54-hole cut was made in 2002) ... A total of 69 teams competed, just one shy of the previous high of 70 from South Africa (2006) ... Guam, the Republic of Serbia and the United Republic of Tanzania made their first appearances in the World Amateur Team Championships ... Kenya played for only the second time and first time since 1958 ... Three teams that finished in the top 10 in 2008 had at least two players returning for the 2010 championship: third-place Sweden had Jesper Kennegard and Henrik Norlander ... Italy, which tied for fourth in 2008, returned Andrea Pavan and Nino Bertasio ... The Argentines, who tied for ninth in 2008, had Jorge Fernandez-Valdes and Emiliano Grillo as returners ... Pakistan was the only nation to field the same team as in 2008. Muhammad Safdar Khan, Muhammad Ali Hai and Hamza Taimur Amin finished 47th in 2008 ... In January 2010, the Copa de las Americas, a team event for nations in the Americas region, was played at Olivos Golf Club and Buenos Aires Golf Club ... In that championship, the United States of America won the overall and women's championships and finished second in the men's competition ... Peter Uihlein, the reigning U.S. Amateur champion, was a member of the men's team. Argentina won the men's event by five strokes over the USA with two members also on the 2010 World Amateur team — Grillo and Tomas Cocha ... Grillo was the lowest individual scorer in the men's event at 279, including a 64 in the third round at Buenos Aires Golf Club, which is the lowest score in the four Copa de las Americas competitions ... Four players who were named to the 2010 College Golf Coaches Association first-team All-America squad played in Argentina: Scott Langley (USA for the University of Illinois and the 2010 Arnold Palmer Award winner as the NCAA Division I Men's individual champion), Andrea Pavan (Italy for Texas A&M University), Peter Uihlein (USA for Oklahoma State University) and Eugene Wong (Canada for the University of Oregon and the 2010 Jack Nicklaus Award winner as the Division I player of the year) ... Pavan was a member of Texas A&M's NCAA Championship team in 2009. Norlander (Sweden for Augusta State University, which won the 2010 NCAA Division I Team Championship) was a second-team selection. David Chung (USA for Stanford University), Dylan Frittelli (South Africa for the University of Texas) and Kennegard (Sweden for Arizona State University) were named to the third team ... Espen Kofstad (Norway for the University of Denver) was an honorable mention selection ... At 15 years old, Gonzalo Leon of Ecuador was believed to be the youngest player, although not all biographical forms were returned ... Jose Hernandez of the Dominican Republic was also 15 but turned 16 the month after the championship ... At 49, Guam's playing captain Lon Lindsey, was believed to be the oldest player ... The 2009 Argentine Amateur was played at Buenos Aires Golf Club and the two finalists played for their countries at the World Amateur: Romain Wattel of France defeated Ross Kellett of Scotland, 7 and 5, in the final on Nov. 22, 2009 ... Fred Ridley served as the captain of the USA Team, the sixth time a U.S. Amateur champion did so, joining Robert T. Jones Jr. in 1958, Jess Sweetser in 1966, William C. Campbell in 1968 and 1986 and Vinny Giles in 1992 ... The USA won gold in 1968 with Bill Campbell but was second the other four times ... Gordon Brewer, who was the 1994 and 1996 USGA Senior Amateur champion, was captain for the USA victory in 2002.

Championship History

The idea of a World Amateur Team Championship and the World Amateur Golf Council grew out of a suggestion that the USGA received to sponsor a team match between the USA and Japan in 1957.

The USGA, which received many such invitations from other countries, simply could not accept them all.

The USGA instead suggested a team competition that would bring together the best players of all countries, accommodating all possible interests. Even those American advocates of adding golf to the Olympics seemed satisfied with the World Team Championship idea.

In January 1958, the USGA Executive Committee approved in principle a plan for such a championship. That March, a group of USGA representatives, including USGA President John D. Ames, met with officials of the Royal & Ancient Golf Club to discuss the plan. St. Andrews was proposed as the site of the first championship later that year. The R&A joined in implementing the idea. In May, representatives of the national amateur golf associations of 35 countries attending a planning conference in Washington, D.C., formed the World Amateur Golf Council. The council had 32 member organizations and planned the first championship.

President Dwight D. Eisenhower received the delegates in the Rose Garden of the White House and consented to the naming of the championship prize as The Eisenhower Trophy. Eisenhower endorsed the concept, saying, "Both officially and personally I am interested in the plan advanced by the USGA for an amateur team golf championship among nations. I visualize it, as you do, as a potent force for establishing goodwill and friendship between yet another segment of the populations of nations."

The championship received yet another stroke of good luck when Bob Jones agreed to be captain of the first USA Team. Jones had taken the first leg of his 1930 Grand Slam at St. Andrews by winning the British Amateur, but 22 years had passed since he had visited there last.

The first championship was played over the Old Course of St. Andrews in October 1958, and 115 players representing 29 countries played. Australia won in a playoff with the USA. The lowest individual scores for the 72 holes were 301s by William Hyndman III of the USA, Bruce Devlin of Australia and Reid Jack of Great Britain & Ireland.

Jack Nicklaus, who represented the USA in 1960 at Merion Golf Club (East Course), in Ardmore, Pa., holds the 72-hole individual scoring record of 269.

While the USA has prevailed in 13 of the 27 competitions, Great Britain & Ireland has won four times, and countries as diverse in the world of golf as Australia, Canada, Japan, New Zealand, Netherlands, Scotland and Sweden have each captured the Eisenhower Trophy.

The World Amateur Team Championship has now been conducted in 24 nations.

The organization's name changed to the International Golf Federation in 2003.
