

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 14, 2016 – 8 AM WEATHER FORECAST

High pressure will dominate our weather for the final day of the championship. We'll be treated to abundant sunshine and highs topping off in the low 70s. During play this morning, we are mainly looking at temperatures in the 60s with the exception of the 8 am hour, when we'll be in the upper 50s. With dewpoints near 50 we are looking at comfortable conditions as well. Winds will typically be less than 15 mph during play and varying from the southwest to southeast. More nice weather is in store tomorrow. For Friday, a good deal of sunshine will be around as highs climb to the upper 70s. Saturday looks to be a soggy one as another cold front will bring the threat for thunderstorms and rain. Enjoy today's sunshine!
