

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 13, 2016 – 7 AM WEATHER FORECAST

High pressure will still give us plenty of sunshine today. It will be warmer with highs returning to the low 80s. The dewpoint will also rise to the upper 50s today. Winds will typically be in the 7-14 mph range and start out from the south and slowly rotate to out of the west-southwest. A cold front will pass through the area tomorrow. Out ahead of it, we'll see increasing clouds tonight as lows dip into the mid 60s. Winds tonight will be out of the southwest from 5-10 mph. Tomorrow the cold front will bring the threat for scattered showers and thunderstorms. We'll increase to a 40% at 8 am and increase to a 60% around noon. At this point, it looks like our best chance for rain and storms will be around 1-2 pm. The system could also give us up to a .50" of rain. The front looks to be gone by about 5 pm. Another high pressure will try to build in again on Thursday, so that means dry weather for the final day of the championship on Thursday.
