Jeongeun Lee6 Wins the 2019 Championship

Jeongeun Lee6 of the Republic of Korea broke out of a crowded leader board with three back-nine birdies and withstood some late struggles to shoot 1-under-par 70 and win the 74th U.S. Women's Open Championship by two strokes over a trio of players at the Country Club of Charleston.

Lee6, who turned 23 during championship week, earned $1 million in notching her first victory in the United States. The six-time winner in three seasons on the Korea LPGA Tour, who is in her first full-time season on the LPGA Tour, shot 70-69-69-70 for a 6-under-par total of 278.

"She couldn't imagine coming this far," said Jennifer Kim, Lee6's manager and translator. "She feels proud of herself, and she worked so hard."

In the early going, seven players held a share of the lead, and there were at least five players tightly bunched as Lee6 made the turn in even-par 36, playing in the third-to-last group with Mamiko Higa of Japan. Most of the leaders struggled out of the gate, and as the final group of former Duke University teammates Celine Boutier and Yu Liu played the par-5 fifth hole, the last nine pairings of the day stood a combined 23 over par.

Lee6 assumed control with an impressive up-and-down on No. 10, hitting the flagstick for a tap-in par from 70 feet, then birdieing the difficult par-3 11th (8 feet) and the par-4 12th (5 feet). After solid two-putt pars from about 18 feet on Nos. 13 and 14, Lee6 knocked a 50-yard wedge approach to 4 feet and made birdie on the par-5 15th for a three-stroke lead. That is when she grasped the task ahead of her on the difficult closing holes.

"I was nervous starting 16, 17, and 18, and I knew that if I made all pars on those holes, I knew that I'm going to win," said Lee6. "I know I made two bogeys, but I just didn't want to think about it too much. I tried the best that I can."

Boutier had the best opportunity to catch Lee6, who slipped to 6 under after missing the green on both Nos. 16 and 18. Boutier stuffed her approach on No. 16 to 3½ feet, but lipped out the birdie putt that would have brought her to 6 under. Boutier came to No. 18 still needing a birdie to tie, but she bunkered her approach, took two shots to reach the green and then lipped out her putt, making a double bogey that dropped her into a tie for fifth.

"On a scale of one to 10, [today was] probably a one," said Boutier, 25, of France, who earned her first LPGA Tour win in January. "I feel pretty bad right now. Hopefully, I'll learn from this. I just feel like my putter was not good all day, and I just struggled to have birdie opportunities throughout the day."

Lexi Thompson, Angel Yin and 2011 U.S. Women's Open champion So Yeon Ryu finished tied for second place, two strokes back at 4-under 280, while Boutier was in a group of five players at 3-under 281.

Lee6's final round of 70 was her eighth under-par effort in 12 career U.S. Women's Open rounds. Lee6 finished fifth in her championship debut in 2017 at Trump Bedminster and tied for 17th last year at Shoal Creek.

Her victory marked the 18th victory in the last 36 major championships for players from the Republic of Korea, and she is also the 11th different player in 11 years to win the U.S. Women's Open and the ninth different player to win a major in the past nine.

Thompson, 24, was seeking to join Inbee Park as the only players to win the U.S. Women's Open and the ANA Inspiration before age 25, but she hit only six fairways and struggled to a round of 73.

Yin and Gerina Piller posted early rounds of 3-under 68 to vault up the leader board, but both had late bogeys that kept them from finishing their comebacks. Yin moved from a tie for 18th starting the day into a tie for second, while Piller moved from a tie for 22nd into a tie for fifth.

NOTABLE

Lydia Ko, who won the 2012 U.S. Women's Amateur at age 15 en route to 15 victories on the LPGA Tour, finished in a tie for 39th place. But the New Zealander provided a highlight on Sunday by holing her tee shot on the difficult par-3 11th hole for the 28th ace in U.S. Women's Open history. The perfect shot made Ko 1 under for the four days on No. 11, the reverse Redan hole, which played to a 3.44 stroke average for the week, the toughest hole on the course. "My first [ace] was at the Olympics in Rio, and then my second one is at the U.S. Women's Open," said Ko, who hit 6-iron on the 159-yard hole. "Maybe I should go for the career Grand Slam holes-in-one."

Three players made their professional debuts in this championship. Maria Fassi, 21, of Mexico, who captured the NCAA women's individual title for the University of Arkansas two weeks ago, shot 68-70 on the weekend to finish in a tie for 12th place. Patty Tavatanakit, 19, of Thailand, who tied for fifth in last year's Women's Open to earn low-amateur honors, finished in a tie for 34th place in her professional debut after two years at UCLA. Jennifer Kupcho, 22, who won the NCAA individual title for Wake Forest in 2018 and defeated Fassi in the inaugural Augusta National Women's Amateur in April, struggled on the weekend and finished in a tie for 62nd.

Players from Korea have won eight U.S. Opens since 2008, while players from the USA have won three and one player from Thailand has won.

Championship History

The U.S. Women's Open was added to the USGA's roster of championships in 1953, 58 years after the first U.S. Women's Amateur. The reason for the USGA's relatively late assumption of the Women's Open is simple: women's professional golf is fairly new. When Opal Hill turned professional in 1938, she and Helen Hicks were two of the very few women golf professionals in the world.

Unlike the other 13 national championships conducted by the USGA, the Women's Open was created by another organization. In 1946, the short-lived Women's Professional Golfers Association introduced the Women's Open at match play at the Spokane (Wash.) Country Club. The Spokane Athletic Round Table, a men's fraternal organization, contributed the $19,700 purse from its slot machines proceeds.

The first Women's Open was the only one conducted at match play. Patty Berg won the 36-hole qualifying medal in 1946, with rounds of 72-73—145, then won the championship by defeating Betty Jameson, 5 and 4, in the 36-hole final.

The small membership of the WPGA ran the championship for three years. By 1949, however, women's professional golf was making significant strides and the Ladies Professional Golf Association was founded. A group of 11 women, including Berg, Jameson, Louise Suggs and Babe Didrikson Zaharias, established the new association to provide organized tournaments for women professionals. The LPGA ran the Women's Open for four years, but in 1953 asked the USGA to conduct the championship. The first Women's Open under the USGA flag was played at the Country Club of Rochester, in upstate New York, where Betsy Rawls won the second of her four Women's Open titles (1951, 1953, 1957, 1960).

Conducted by the USGA ever since, the Women's Open is the oldest championship open to women professionals and amateurs. Rawls and Mickey Wright, the only other four-time winner (1958, 1959, 1961, 1964) were the championship's dominant players from 1957 through 1964, winning six Women's Opens between them during those eight years. In 1967, Catherine Lacoste, daughter of French tennis player Rene Lacoste and 1927 British Ladies Amateur Champion Simone Thion de la Chaume, became the only amateur to win the Women's Open.

In its 72-year history, the U.S. Women's Open has reigned as the world's greatest women's championship, attracting steadily increasing numbers of entries and spectators. Whereas only 37 contestants played in 1953, in 1976 the field jumped to 205 players and sectional qualifying was introduced. In 2001, a then-record 980 contestants entered. A four-day attendance record of 41,200 was set in 1979 at Brooklawn Country Club in Fairfield, Conn. At the 50th Women's Open, in 1995, that record was more than doubled at The Broadmoor Golf Club in Colorado Springs, Colo.

In recent years, the U.S. Women's Open has truly become the world arena of women's golf. Since 1990, 15 championships have been won by foreign-born players, while only three of the first 41 champions were foreign-born. The emergence of the Women's Open as a great international contest came in 1987, when England's Laura Davies prevailed in an 18-hole playoff against Japan's Ayako Okamoto and JoAnne Gunderson Carner of the United States.

Annika Sorenstam established the 72-hole scoring record of 8-under-par 272 at Pine Needles Lodge & Golf Club in 1996. Juli Inkster matched that 72-hole score of 272, also setting a record in relation to par at 16 under, in 1999. In Gee Chun returned an 8-under 272 in 2015 at Lancaster Country Club, where she became just the fourth player to capture the Women's Open title in her first championship appearance.

In 2002, qualifying for the Women's Open was held in two stages for the first time — 18 holes for local qualifying and 36 holes for sectional qualifying. Since 2010, there has been one stage — a 36-hole sectional qualifier. Additionally, in 2014, the USGA held international qualifying for the first time in championship history. Qualifying was conducted at sites in the People's Republic of China, England, Japan and the Republic of Korea.

Entries for the U.S. Women's Open also have topped the 1,000 mark every year since 2004, illustrating the global growth of women's golf.
