Saki Baba Wins the 2022 Championship

Displaying superb ball striking, near-flawless putting and a killer competitive instinct, Saki Baba put on a clinic at the U.S. Women’s Amateur Championship. The 17-year-old from Japan defeated 21-year-old Monet Chun of Canada, 11 and 9, on a chamber of commerce day at Chambers Bay. With the victory, Baba becomes just the second player from Japan to win a USGA championship, after Michiko Hattori won this title in 1998.

“It’s just amazing. I just can’t believe it,” said an emotional Baba through a translator. “I was able to play my kind of golf. Yeah, everything just went smoothly.”

Baba’s kind of golf was very effective at Chambers Bay. She won the first hole with a par after Chun, a junior at the University of Michigan, hit the dunes to the right and struggled to get back into play. After the two finalists tied the second hole with birdies, Baba won the next three in a row to build a 4-up lead that quickly felt much larger.

Baba, who relentlessly hits fairways and greens and seems to make just about every putt inside 10 feet, increased her lead to 5 up through eight holes. Chun, a steady player in her own right, was not able to mount a sustained comeback even when she hit quality shots.

“Honestly, I was trying to match it up, but it was pretty amazing just to watch,” said Chun. “She was going for every pin, making every putt, and that’s hard to match up.”

A prime example was the scenic, downhill par-4 14th hole. After both players split the fairway with their drives, Chun, who was 6 down at the time, played first and hit her approach to 15 feet. Baba, unfazed, struck a near-perfect iron shot that nestled just 7 feet from the hole. Chun missed her birdie, Baba made hers, and the lead was 7 up, which was where it stood at the midway point of the 36-hole final.

During a lengthy break for lunch and warm-up, Baba received ice and heat treatment for her lower back. She held her lower-left back as she walked off two teeing grounds just after the start of the second 18. Perhaps sensing an opportunity, Chun rolled a birdie putt on the par-3 second hole and won the par-3 third with a par to trim Baba’s lead to 5 up.

“If she made a mistake, lost a hole, it woke her up and she bounced right back,” said Beau Brushert, the Chambers Bay caddie who had Baba bag’s this week. “She didn’t let it get her down. She’s amazing. She’s a lot of fun to watch.”

The par-5 fourth hole proved to be a turning point. Chun, playing first, hit a wedge approach to 6 feet behind the hole. Baba was just in front of the green in two but faced a difficult path to get her ball close. She played an exquisite high pitch that rolled up 7 feet below the hole. Showing the feel for the greens that helped her defeat five previous opponents, Baba rolled in the birdie putt to put the pressure on Chun, who missed. What looked like a hole that could have gone Chun’s way instead went for Baba, and the historic rout was back on.

Baba won the next four holes, three of them with birdies, to cap off the final margin of victory and put herself into the USGA annals as one of the most dominant victors in championship history.

Notable

Baba’s 11-and-9 win is the largest margin of victory in a U.S. Women’s Amateur final since Anne Sander in 1961. It is the largest margin of victory for a player from outside the United States.

Baba played 106 match-play holes during the championship, tied for second fewest by a champion since 1973, matching Morgan Pressel (103) and behind only Carolyn Hill (102) in 1979.

Baba’s 7-up lead after 18 holes was the largest in a U.S. Women’s Amateur final since Anne Sander held a 12-up lead in 1954.

From the sixth hole in her quarterfinal match, Baba won 28 of the last 49 holes she played, losing only four in that span.

In match play, Baba’s cumulative score was 24 under par, making every putt, and that’s hard to match up.

Quoteable

“I’m extremely proud. I couldn’t have imagined making it this far, and being here, it’s an incredible honor and also just great to represent [the University of] Michigan and Canada, as well.” – U.S. Women’s Amateur runner-up Monet Chun

“I loved her demeanor. There’s a little bit of a language barrier, but I could tell if she got a little quiet I tried to give her a little smile and just get her mind off stuff. But her poise and her composure are amazing.” – Beau Brushert, Saki Baba’s caddie

“If it wasn’t for Beau, I don’t think I would have been able to make it. He was a big help.” – Saki Baba, on her caddie

The U.S. Women’s Amateur Championship marks the beginning of women’s competitive golf in this country. Along with the U.S. Amateur and the U.S. Open, the Women’s Amateur was one of the USGA’s first three championships. The first Women’s Amateur Championship was arranged one month after the 1895 Amateur and Open Championships. The following small item appeared in the social column of a New York newspaper shortly after the completion of play: “Thirteen ladies played 18 holes of golf at the Meadow Brook Club in Hempstead, recently. Mrs. Charles S. Brown, whose husband plays at the Shinnecock Hills Club, in Southampton, L.I., made the best score and thus won the United States championship for lady golfers.”

Few early golf clubs encouraged women to play. There were exceptions, of course, most notably Shinnecock Hills, whose private property the Women’s Amateur title would become for the first four years. When Lucy Barnes Brown elected not to defend in 1896, Shinnecock came up with a replacement in Beatrice Hoyt, who would become its best-known player. Hoyt, the granddaughter of Supreme Court Chief Justice Salmon P. Chase, won the next three championships.

Although a stroke-play format was selected for the first championship, the Women’s Amateur became a match-play competition in 1896 and has remained so since.

The most noteworthy champion is Glenna Collett Vare, a lifelong amateur who won the Cox Trophy a record six times. In the 1920s and 1930s, Vare was the darling of the sports world, much as Bob Jones was during that era. Second only to Vare is JoAnne Gunderson Carner, who won five U.S. Women’s Amateur championships. Combined with her two wins in the U.S. Women’s Open and one victory in the U.S. Girls’ Junior, Canner’s record of eight USGA titles is eclipsed only by Jones and Tiger Woods, who have each won nine.
