Wyndham Clark Wins the 2023 Championship

On a championship Sunday that featured a bevy of leading stars, it was an up-and-comer who had the Oscar-worthy performance at The Los Angeles Country Club.

Playing in the shadows of Hollywood, Wyndham Clark, who had missed the cut in his only two previous U.S. Open appearances and finished no better than a share of 75th in six major-championship starts, stole the show to claim a one-stroke victory.

Showing the moxie of a steely veteran, Clark, 29, of Denver, Colo., overcame two late bogeys on 15 and 16 with a brilliant par save on the 71st hole and then two-putted from 60 feet on the 72nd hole to hold off world No. 3 Rory McIlroy. Clark's even-par 70 gave him a four-day total of 10-under 270.

"You know, this is now my second win on the PGA Tour, and the first one [at last month's Wells Fargo Championship] was surreal and this one is surreal," said Clark. "It hasn't quite hit me yet. Walking up 18 was pretty emotional, and then finishing. It's been a whirlwind of the last five, six weeks. Just so blessed and humbled to be here."

Rickie Fowler, a five-time PGA Tour winner who had the led the championship the first three days and shared the 54-hole with Clark, struggled from the outset in his bid for a first major and posted a disappointing 5-over 75 to share fifth with Tommy Fleetwood and Min Woo Lee at 5-under 275.

World No. 1 Scottie Scheffler also was stuck in neutral most of the day and finished with a 70 to finish in solo third, three behind the winner.

When Clark made it official with his tap-in par on 18, he was immediately hugged by older sister, Kristin, and younger brother, Brendan. His father, Randall, a former collegiate and professional tennis player, also was in attendance. But one person missing from the celebration was his late mother, Lise Thevenet, whom the family lost to breast cancer in 2013 at age 55.

"All I really wish is that my mom could be here, and I could just hug her, and we could celebrate together," said Clark. "But I know she's proud of me."

Her battle with cancer caused Clark to consider walking away from the game while he was attending Oklahoma State. But the loss was a factor in him transferring to the University of Oregon for the 2016-17 season, where he won the Pacific-12 Conference title in Boulder, Colo., near his hometown, and was named Golfweek's player of the year. Clark told reporters this week that his mom's advice to him before every tournament was to "play big."

He heeded that mantra, especially on the weekend when he found himself in the final pairing with Fowler each of the last two days. While Sunday's round wasn't perfect, it was his up-and-downs on Nos. 8, 9, 11 and 17 that eventually won him the championship. The bogey on the par-5 eighth when he left his third shot in thick greenside rough was reminiscent of his bogey-save late Saturday on the 17th hole.

Most watching at home or on the grounds were expecting McIlroy, Fowler or Scheffler – three of the biggest names in golf – to hoist the trophy at day's end. All three received the most roars on Sunday but the trio failed to match the adulation on the 7,359-yard George C. Thomas Jr. design that underwent a restoration by Gil Hanse in preparation for the first U.S. Open in Los Angeles since 1948.

McIlroy, who claimed the last of his four majors at the PGA Championship in 2014, birdied the opening par 5 but didn't make another birdie the rest of the day, despite a number of golden opportunities. He three-putted the par-5 eighth for a par and bogeyed the par-5 14th when his 117-yard third came up short of the green.

This was his second major disappointment in the last year; he came up just short to Cameron Smith in the 150th Open Championship at St. Andrews. He hit 59 of 72 greens in regulation, the most by any player who did not win a U.S. Open.

Fowler was trying to be the feel-good story of the championship. He didn't qualify for the last two U.S. Opens – a year ago at The Country Club he was the next-man up as an alternate – and slipped to as low as 185 in the Official World Golf Ranking. But since returning to instructor Butch Harmon, the 2015 Players champion, who finished in the top five of all four majors in 2014 but didn't win, had slowly regained his confidence and form. He even said after Saturday's third round that he wasn't afraid to fail because of what's endured the past two years.

After shattering the 36-hole birdie mark with 18, he could only muster five on the weekend, including two in the final round against seven bogeys.

Meanwhile, Scheffler just couldn't get hot with his putter. The 2022 Masters champion who had an eagle-birdie finish on Saturday, carded an even-par 70 with three birdies and three bogeys. That's normally a solid recipe for success in a U.S. Open, but the 2022 runner-up needed more fireworks on a course that yielded 10 rounds of 65 or better.

Clark was one of those players, having carded a first-round 64 that was only two strokes off the record-setting performances of Fowler and Xander Schauffele. He followed with rounds of 67, 69 and 70 to become the fifth consecutive player to make the U.S. Open his first major title. To find a longer streak one has to go back 50 years (1973-78).

Now he's a major champion in a town that loves its stars.

On Sunday, he officially joined that list.

Championship History

On Oct. 4, 1895, the first U.S. Open Championship was conducted by the United States Golf Association on the nine-hole course of Newport (R.I.) Golf and Country Club.

The first U.S. Open was considered something of a sideshow to the first U.S. Amateur, which was played on the same course and during the same week. Both championships had been scheduled for September but were postponed due to a conflict with a more established Newport sports spectacle, the America's Cup yacht races.

Ten professionals and one amateur started in the 36-hole competition, which was four trips around the Newport course in one day. The surprise winner was Horace Rawlins, 21, an English professional who was the assistant at the host course. Rawlins scored 91-82—173 with the gutta-percha ball.

Prize money totaled $335, of which Rawlins won the $150 first prize. He also received a gold medal and custody of the Open Championship Trophy for his club for one year.

In its first decade, the U.S. Open was conducted for amateurs and the largely British wave of immigrant golf professionals coming to the United States.

As American players began to dominate the game, the U.S. Open evolved into an important world golf championship. Young John J. McDermott became the first native-born American winner in 1911 and repeated as champion in 1912.

In 1913, the U.S. Open really took off when Francis Ouimet, a 20-year-old American amateur, stunned the golf world by defeating the famous English professionals Harry Vardon and Ted Ray in a playoff.

Another surge in the championship's popularity coincided with the amazing career of Georgia amateur Robert T. Jones Jr., who won the U.S. Open four times (1923, 1926, 1929, 1930). Spectator tickets were sold for the first time in 1922 and a boom in entries caused the USGA to introduce sectional qualifying in 1924.

In 1933, John Goodman became the fifth and last amateur to win the U.S. Open. The others were Ouimet, Jerome D. Travers (1915), Charles Evans Jr. (1916) and Jones.

In each era, the world's greatest players have been identified by surviving the rigorous examination provided by the U.S. Open. Ben Hogan's steely determination boosted him to four victories (1948, 1950, 1951, 1953). Arnold Palmer's record comeback win in 1960, when he fired a final-round 65 to come from seven strokes off the lead, cemented his dash-ing image. Jack Nicklaus' historic assault on the professional record book began when he won the first of his four U.S. Open Championships in 1962, his rookie season as a professional.

Nicklaus, who also won in 1967, 1972 and 1980, is one of only four golfers to capture four U.S. Open titles. The others are Willie Anderson (1901, 1903, 1904, 1905), Jones and Hogan.

In 1954, the U.S. Open course was roped from tee to green for the first time. That year also marked the first national television coverage. Coverage was expanded by ABC Sports in 1977 so that all 18 holes of the final two rounds were broadcast live. In 1982, the first two rounds were broadcast live for the first time on ESPN. NBC began televising the U.S. Open in 1995 and was followed by Fox in 2015. NBC returned as the broadcast partner in 2020 at Winged Foot Golf Club.

The format of the U.S. Open has changed several times. The USGA extended the championship to 72 holes in 1898, with 36 holes played on each of two days. In 1926, the format was changed to 18 holes played each of two days, then 36 holes on the third day. In 1965, the present format of four 18-hole daily rounds was implemented for the first time.

In 2002, a two-tee (No. 1 and No. 10) start was used for the first and second rounds. In addition, Bethpage State Park's Black Course in Farmingdale, N.Y., became the first facility owned by the public to host a U.S. Open. International qualifying sites were added in 2005 and the champion at Pinehurst Resort & Country Club, in Village of Pinehurst, N.C., was Michael Campbell, who qualified in England.

Brooks Koepka became the first player since Curtis Strange (1988-89) to win consecutive U.S. Opens with his victory at Shinnecock Hills Golf Club in 2018. Koepka also became the 22nd player to capture multiple U.S. Open Championships.

In 2020, the U.S. Open was postponed from June to September due to the COVID-19 pandemic. Both stages of qualifying were canceled which resulted in an all-exempt field. The field was limited to 144 players due to less daylight in the fall.
